Heaven's Blueprint for Kingdom Builders

JOSEPH BUNCH

TRIM	5.25 × 8 in · 258 pages
FORMATS	Paperback · Kindle
PLATFORM	Amazon KDP
MY ROLE	Interior · Cover rebuild · Mockups
TIMELINE	August 2026

A draft cover, rebuilt to carry weight in print.

WHAT CAME IN

A Word manuscript of 25 chapters built on Chronicles, Ezra and Nehemiah, and a pale, screen-resolution cover draft.

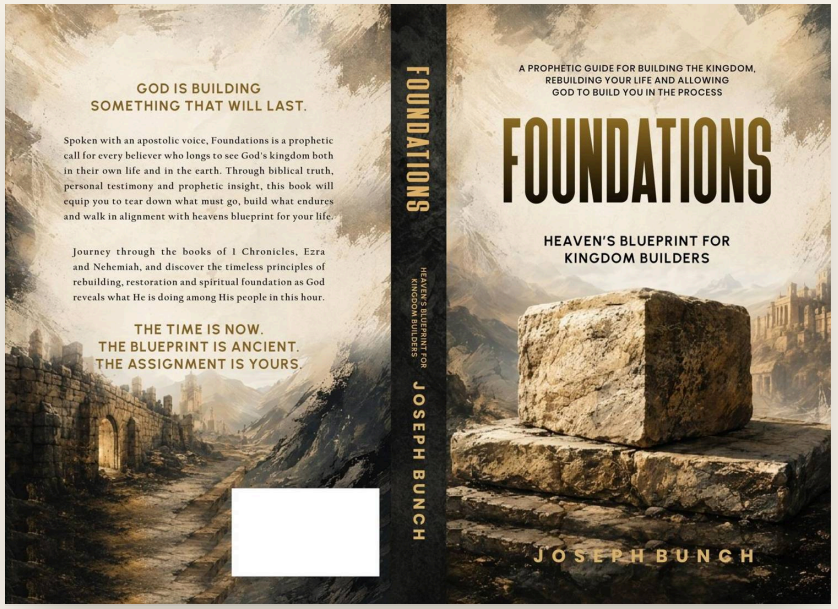

WHAT I DID

I typeset the interior for paperback and Kindle, and rebuilt the cover at print resolution with deeper stone tones, a new back-cover scene and a textured spine.

RECEIVED · DRAFT

1,609 px wide: fine on screen, too small to print. A flat, pale palette and a plain spine.

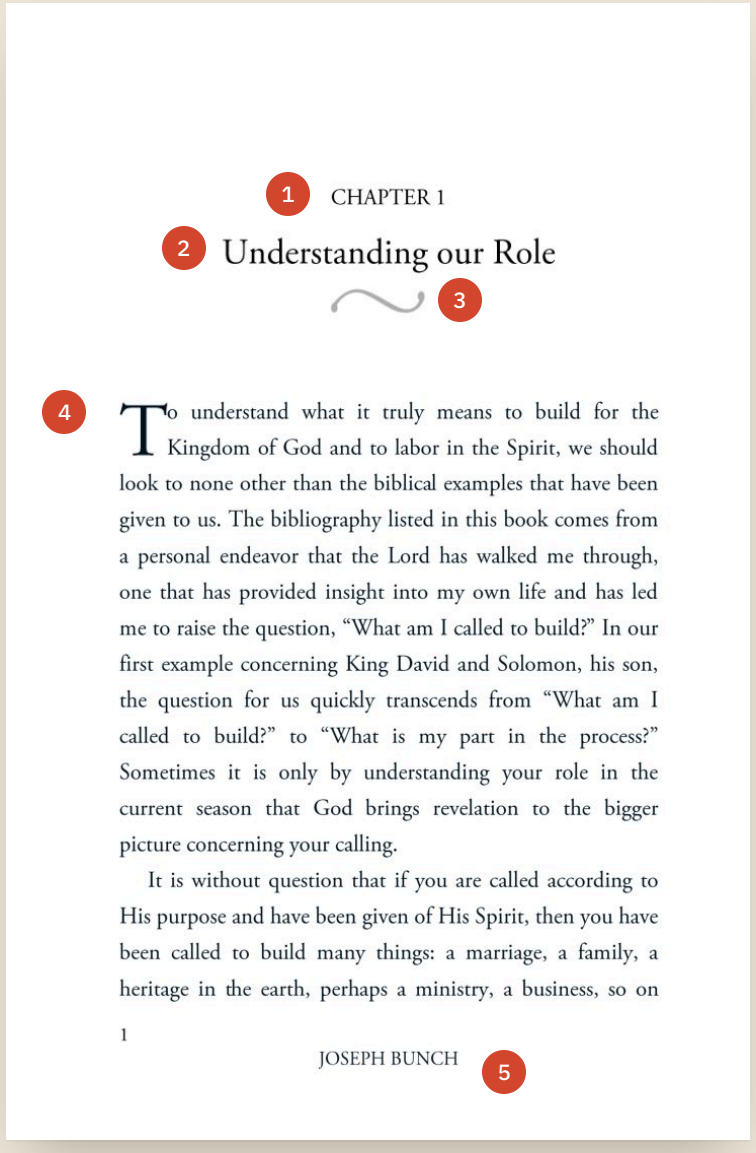

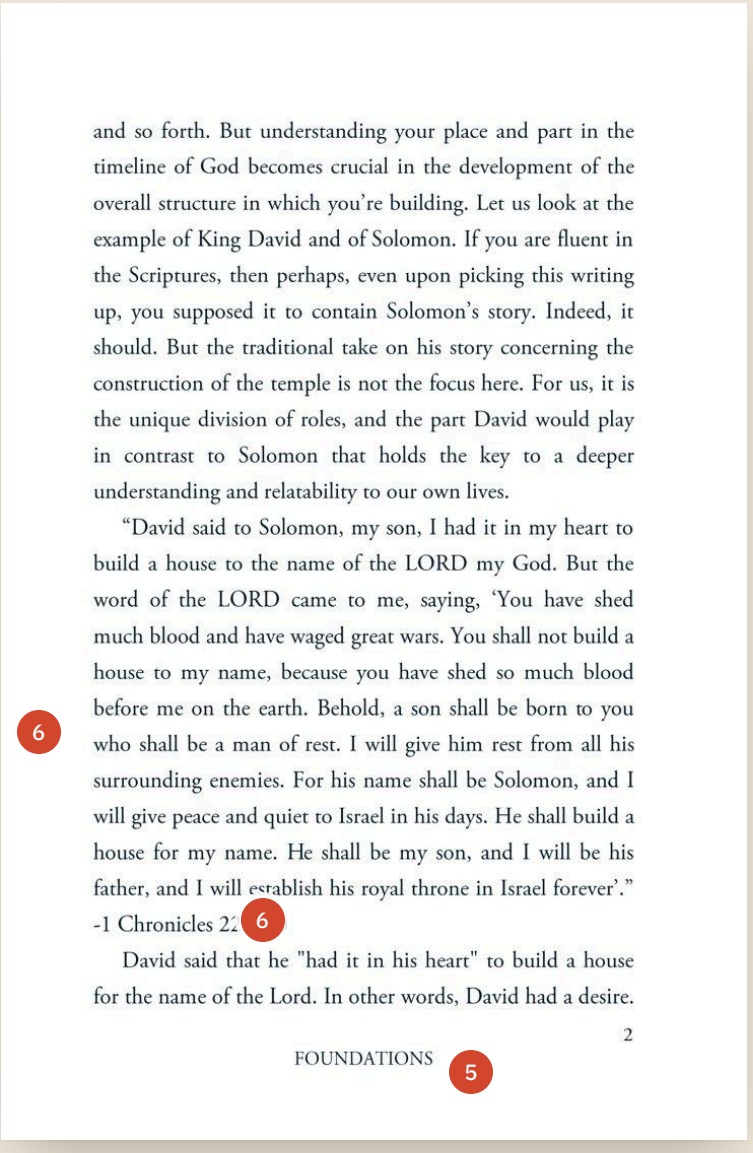

DELIVERED · PRINT WRAP

5,676 px print master with richer contrast, ruined-wall back scene, stone spine, and a clear barcode area for KDP.

Built for reading slowly, with a Bible open.

1. Chapter label
   Plain caps for the number, so the title stays the focus.
2. Chapter title
   Set large in the text face: classic, not decorative.
3. Grey swash
   One soft ornament reused on the title page and every chapter.
4. Drop cap
   A two-line initial with generous line spacing for devotional reading.
5. Running footer
   Author on one page, title on the facing page, with folios.
6. Scripture passages
   Long quotations kept in the text flow with the reference on its own line.

Quiet pages for a book that asks a lot of its reader.

TITLE PAGE

A bold title over a small-caps subtitle, with the swash as the only ornament.

PREFACE

If this book has found you, perhaps the spiritual significance of its contents will touch you even as it has touched me. I was inspired to write this, not by the will of man nor by the will of my own desire, but because the Holy Spirit was teaching me something, and when the Holy Spirit teaches one, He teaches all.

The fabric of this book will cover many points but will ultimately be centered upon a certain concept found in Scripture; a spiritual framework, if you will, a framework that is laid upon the foundation of what it means to "build" the kingdom of God.

What do you think of when you hear "kingdom building?" Evangelism? Preaching? Pastoral and ministerial duties? Yes, but even more than that. The most important kingdom building we can accomplish will take place within the most personal avenues of our lives. Think about marriage, children, legacy, careers. They all require labor and continuous maintenance, and we will always be in the process of building up these structures.

The truth is that everyone who chooses to follow Jesus will be called to build throughout their life. We are God's chosen people, created for His purposes. It is only fitting that He would entrust us with lasting legacies within our families,

CONTENTS

Chapters on even dot leaders, with page numbers aligned to one edge.

Perhaps you have many godly desires residing in your own heart. Maybe you've had it in your heart to start a ministry, pastor a church, or become involved in some form of outreach. But do we stop to ask the Lord whether it is even permissible before setting our hands to the work?

The point I am making is this: your desire does not automatically appoint you to the work. Our zeal does not necessarily qualify us, no matter how pure it is. David was disqualified from building the temple, but not in the negative sense of the word. Scripture says that David was "a man after God's own heart" (1 Sam. 13:14), despite his own shortcomings.

Oh, how we should be able to identify with the life of this man. He loved the Lord, accomplished great things with good intentions, yet still fell into detestable acts. And yet, he was accepted by God. Is this not the continual power of the Gospel and of God's grace in our lives?

The life David lived and the wars he waged for the security of God's people, and ultimately for the security of his son Solomon, became the very reason he was not permitted to build the house himself. David's desire would ultimately become Solomon's assignment.

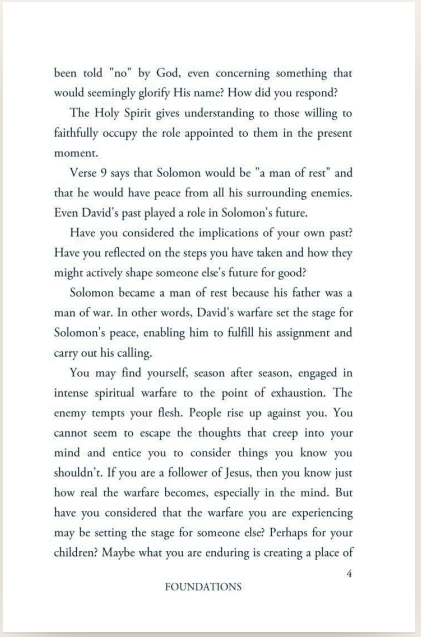

Does that mean David had no part in such a weighty calling? Does it mean he lost hope in the purpose God had revealed to him? What does this say to you? Have you ever been told "no" by God, even concerning something that would seemingly glorify His name? How did you respond?

The Holy Spirit gives understanding to those willing to faithfully occupy the role appointed to them in the present moment.

Verse 9 says that Solomon would be "a man of rest" and that he would have peace from all his surrounding enemies. Even David's past played a role in Solomon's future.

Have you considered the implications of your own past? Have you reflected on the steps you have taken and how they might actively shape someone else's future for good?

Solomon became a man of rest because his father was a man of war. In other words, David's warfare set the stage for Solomon's peace, enabling him to fulfill his assignment and carry out his calling.

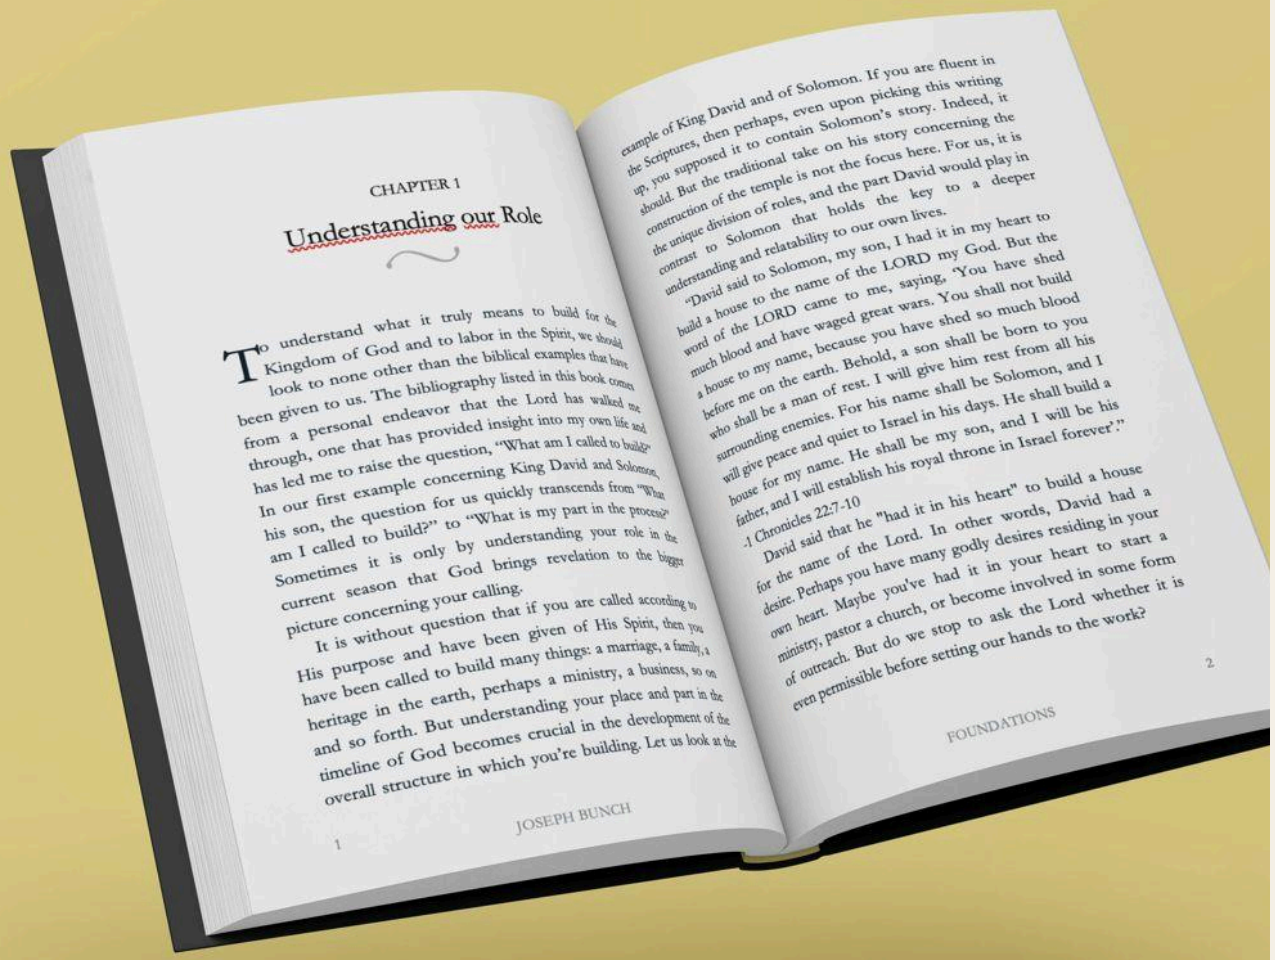

You may find yourself, season after season, engaged in intense spiritual warfare to the point of exhaustion. The enemy tempts your flesh. People rise up against you. You cannot seem to escape the thoughts that creep into your mind and entice you to consider things you know you shouldn't. If you are a follower of Jesus, then you know just how real the warfare becomes, especially in the mind. But have you considered that the warfare you are experiencing may be setting the stage for someone else? Perhaps for your children? Maybe what you are enduring is creating a place of

“I was pleased to come across Olamilekanwaliu. I stated all that I was in search of and a budget limit, and he willingly took it on and nailed it. There were certain parts of the manuscript that could have stayed as is, but overall the quality of work was excellent and the communication was constant, which made my work feel safe in his and his team's hands. I recommend him to anyone needing help in their publishing journey.”
